'Spectacular Spider-Man' film shoot set for Sunday

Web series to be filmed in downtown Wabash this weekend

By ROB BURGESS

Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

If you're in downtown Wabash this weekend and you see a masked man swinging from building to building, don't be alarmed: It's probably just your friendly, neighborhood Spider-Man.

At Thursday's Board of Public Works and Safety meeting, final approval was given to Falling Star Pictures' Devon Noble, of North Manchester, for a "film shoot for (a) trailer of (an) upcoming Marvel web series," according to the special event application.

The "Spectacular Spider-Man" shoot is set to shut down part of downtown Wabash for short period during filming, said mayor's assistant Bev Vanderpool.

The two barricades will be delivered from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18 on Miami Street, according to the application.

The shoot will be insured by Thimble Insurance Company and will require a "rainmaker."

In response to a Plain Dealer request, Falling Star Pictures' Connor Noble, of Wabash, said they would be "filming a concept trailer for it to pitch with and fundraise for this web series."

"It would be a crew set up to film a couple of scenes, and we would need a street blocked off to film in the middle of it in the evening. We picked one of the main streets so we could get a more city feeling from the downtown area," said Connor Noble.

Connor Noble said the project was a "Marvel-based fan series, which doesn't require permission for those ahead of time."

Local arts group's 26th annual fall musical to be performed Sept. 23 to 25

By ROB BURGESS

Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

The Wabash Area Community Theater (WACT) was formed in 1995 and Bob Wade was there, said board president Bev Vanderpool.

Vanderpool said Bob Wade, and his late wife, Josey, were also a part of the original Wabash Community Theater, which started in the 1970s.

"According to Bob, he really had no interest in being on stage and basically started hanging around the theater to be closer to his wife. Wabash Community Theater shut down in the 1980s but started as WACT in 1995," said Vanderpool. "Bob was around again. However, this time they needed a man who could dance. They talked Bob into joining the show and he has been hooked ever since."

Vanderpool said the WACT will present their 26th fall musical, "Guys and Dolls," from Friday, Sept. 23 through Sunday, Sept. 25 at the Honeywell Center's Ford Theater. Show times are 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $20 each and are available for purchase by calling 260-563-1102 or visiting honeywellarts.org.

Vanderpool said they were excited to welcome back Bob Wade, who is now 93.

Vanderpool said Bob Wade was a member of WACT's performance of "Guys and Dolls" in 2000.

Wabash County Democratic Party to host town hall for Joe Swisher District 17 State Senate candidate will speak on Monday, Sept. 26

By ROB BURGESS

Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

The Wabash County Democratic Party will host a town hall later this month for Joe Swisher, their candidate in the District 17 State Senate race, said chairman Chad Harris.

Harris said the event will begin at 6 p.m. Monday, Sept. 26 at Wings Etc., 1439 N. Cass St.

Harris said in addition to Swisher, "other candidates will be introduced."

"Joe Swisher is a great public servant, who has served in the U.S. Air Force, and as an Indiana State Police (ISP) trooper," said Harris. "Joe Swisher supports women's rights, democracy, and equality among other issues. We ask all voters interested in hearing Joe's platform to come to attend this candidate town hall."

In August, Indiana Stonewall Democrats endorsed Swisher for District 17, which includes Huntington, Grant, and Wabash counties.

Indiana Stonewall Democrats are "LGBTQ-plus Hoosiers and allies committed to ensuring full equality for the community by supporting candidates that prove themselves allies and legislation that improves the lives of all Hoosiers," stated the group.

"I'm so proud to carry this endorsement into the home stretch of this election," said Swisher, "who is committed to supporting the rights of LGBTQ-plus residents, as well as the rights of women to make their own reproductive choices."

In November, Swisher will be facing incumbent Sen. Andy Zay, R-Huntington, who ran unopposed in the May primary election. Swisher was chosen on June 4 by caucus. In response, Zay said he looked forward to campaigning during the general election season.

Swisher said he is a "moderate Democrat" who grew up

WCTFC to introduce new 'Tobacco-Free, Moms to Be' program

Grow Wabash County will host 'Lunch and Learn' on Wednesday, Sept. 28

By ROB BURGESS

Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

Later this month, Grow Wabash County will host the Wabash County Tobacco Free Coalition (WCTFC) as they introduce a new program designed to keep pregnant women from smoking, said WCTFC director Dan Gray.

Gray said the "Lunch and Learn" meeting is scheduled for noon Wednesday, Sept. 28 in the Grow Wabash County conference room, 214 S. Wabash St.

"This hour meeting will provide the needed information to help better understand how the program works," said Gray. "Health care providers and organizations are asked to come to learn more and how to refer their patients and clients to the program."

Gray said to help prepare how many meals to prepare, RSVPs are required by calling 260-274-2920 or emailing wctfcetcessation@hotmail.com.

Gray said WCTFC has received the Indiana Together We Will Grant, "a mini-grant and technical assistance program focused on funding Indiana community projects impacting eight public health priority areas of infant and maternal mortality, environmental justice, substance use disorder, mental health, COVID-19 hesitancy, access, violence and structural and systemic barriers."

Gray said the WCTFC has developed the program "to assist birthing women who smoke, to quit smoking and defeat the addiction that smoking causes."

"The awarded community

Change the future

By JOE SCLAFANI

Exodus 20:4-6 (NLT) – 4 “You must not make for yourself an idol of any kind or an image of anything in the heavens or on the earth or in the sea. 5 You must not bow down to them or worship them, for I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God who will not tolerate your affection for any other gods. I lay the sins of the parents upon their children; the entire family is affected – even children in the third and fourth generations of those who reject me. 6 But I lavish unfailing love for a thousand generations on those who love me and obey my commands. Can we change the future? Do we have that kind of power? Philippians 4:13 (NLT) – 13 For I can do everything through Christ, who gives me strength. Maybe not on our own but with the help of Christ we sure can. The passage from Exodus is talking about what some people call a Generational Curse (see also Numbers 14:18 and Deuteronomy 5:9). We often see sin or behaviors passed down from generation to generation. My father was an alcoholic, his father was an alcoholic, and I don't know if it goes back any farther, but I do know it stops with me. I struggled with alcohol for many years but know have had victory for many years. In my work here at New Beginnings I have seen this pattern of addiction broken and families restored. Because of the work, a man does on himself with the help of God and others, not only have their lives been changed but also the lives of their children. Some of the children of these men have come to know Christ as their savior and have been baptized. There are many ways that families are affected by generational sin. It does not have to be in the form of drug or alcohol addiction, it can be many things. The bottom line is that we need to look at what has been passed down to us and then evaluate what we are passing down. If we are the ones that need to break the “curse”, then go to the Lord who can help you change. 2 Corinthians 5:17 (NLT) – 17 This means that anyone who belongs to Christ has become a new person. The old life is gone; a new life has begun. This may sound simple, but the change begins with you. Your change begins when you accept Christ as your savior. There are many good churches in this area. Connect with one today. Joe Sclafani is the executive director of New Beginnings Ministries of Wabash.

Indianapolis police shoot man possibly linked to Friday slaying

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis police shot and wounded a man Friday as officers were investigating a vehicle matching one seen during an earlier shooting outside a day care center that left a woman dead, police said. The man, who was shot about 10:30 a.m. EDT near downtown Indianapolis, was taken to a hospital where he was reported “to be awake and breathing,” said Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department Officer Samone Burris. The man's name has not been released. Burris said preliminary information leads investigators to believe the man shot by police was connected to the fatal shooting about three hours earlier of a woman outside Charity Child Care. Police said officers were responding to reports of a vehicle matching the description of a vehicle seen at that day care when the man was shot. Officers did not face gunfire in that incident, police said. Burris said officers found several weapons during their initial investigation at the scene of the officer-involved shooting.

in “the region” near Chicago. Swisher originally joined the Army straight out of high school. He graduated from Lake Central High School in St. John. He served four years on active duty from 1977 to 1982 and in the 1st Infantry Division, 1st Battalion, 28th Infantry Regiment in Fort Riley, Kansas from 1978 to 1980. He attended Air Assault School in 1979 for the 101st Air Borne Division “Screaming Eagles” in Fort Campbell, Kentucky. He guarded Pershing nuclear missiles in West Germany from 1980 to 1982 in the 3rd Battalion 84th Field Artillery at the Waldhide Combat Alert Site. Swisher joined the Air Guard 181st Fighter Wing from 1998 to 2003 in Terre Haute. He received a Certificate of Diversity Training in April 2001. He was activated on Sept. 11, 2001, for two years. He was deployed from December 2002 to May 2003 to prepare for the war in Iraq. He received an Air Force Outstanding Unit Award with “V” device for valor. He participated in Operation Southern Watch, Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom. From 2004 to 2014, Swisher joined the Air Force Reserve 434th Air Refueling Wing, 72nd Air Refueling Squadron at Grissom Air Reserve Base in Bunker Hill. There he flew as an in-flight refueler “boom operator.” It was at this time he moved to Wabash to be closer to Grissom. In addition, Swisher was employed by the ISP from 1995 until 2020. Swisher received several commendations for his work while on duty at the ISP Peru Post. In 2020, Swisher retired as Master Trooper after 25 years of honorable service for the ISP. Swisher said before he joined the ISP, he attended a Catholic seminary for about three years. In a recent phone interview with the Plain Dealer, Swisher said in the two years since he retired from the ISP, he had been taking time to relax. But, Swisher said he was inspired to run because he was concerned with the rolling back of rights at the national level. Swisher said when he talks to voters, he tries to connect beyond labels and talking points, especially on hot-button issues. Swisher said while he is a “proud supporter” of the Second Amendment, “there are other amendments besides just the Second Amendment.” Swisher said he is also “very pro-public education.” Swisher said overall, he is in favor of taking time to talk through differences between people instead of talking past each other. Frances Slocum Chapter of the DAR holds their September meeting

The group’s next meeting will be Tuesday, Oct. 11

STAFF REPORT

The monthly meeting of the Frances Slocum Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) took place on Tuesday, Sept. 13 at the Grandstaff-Hentgen Activity Room, according to regent Barbara Amiss.

Guests were Diana McNeeley; Jenn, Callie and Ella Shaffer; Danielle and Lydia Brock; Scarlett and Chloe Dyson; Marlie Wright; Clarence McNeeley; and Richard Baker.

The meeting opened with the DAR ritual, followed by devotions.

The September President General’s message from Pamela Rouse Wright was shared by Joyce Joy-Baker.

“Constitution Week from Sept. 17 to 23 and our National DAR Day of Service in honor of the NSDAR’s founding on Oct. 11 are quickly approaching,” said Joy-Baker. “We encourage you to use these opportunities to celebrate the stars and stripes forever and give back to your communities.”

The National Defense Report was about Patriot Day Remembrance on Sept. 11, 2001.

“Many of us will never forget where we were on that day,” stated the report by Robin Daihl. “Today, reflecting and remembering the events that took place in 2001 reminds people of the sensitivity of time and the importance of standing united as a nation.”

Committee Minutes were on conservation including native plants vs. non-native, American Flag, American Indian: Devil’s Tower, Constitution, Women’s Issues: National Family Month, DAR Schools and America 250 Minute: Nancy Ward.

American Heritage Girls (AHG) troop leader, LaVerne Marion, gave the program with the assistance of the Wabash Troup IN0252 members.

“The organization was founded in 1995 by a group of parents that desired a faith-based, character development program to guide their daughters as women of God and integrity,” said Amiss. “AHG is dedicated to the mission of building women of integrity through service to God, family, community and country. It is a program for girls 5 to 18 years of age.”

For more information on the AHG program, call LaVerne Marion at 260-563-8759.

The next meeting of the Frances Slocum Chapter will be Tuesday, Oct. 11 at Grandstaff-Hentgen Activity Room, 1241 Manchester Ave.

“Prospective members and guests are always welcome to attend,” said Amiss. “DAR membership is open to any woman 18 years of age, who can prove lineal descent from a patriot of the American Revolution.”

Those having questions about their family history lineage information may visit www.dar.org or call Tamra Wise at 574-527-2208 or Amiss at 260-982-4376.

Treasury recommends exploring creation of a digital dollar

By FATIMA HUSSEIN
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Biden administration is moving one step closer to developing a central bank digital currency, known as the digital dollar, saying it would help reinforce the U.S. role as a leader in the world financial system.

The White House said on Friday that after President Joe Biden issued an executive order in March calling on a variety of agencies to look at ways to regulate digital assets, the agencies came up with nine reports, covering cryptocurrency impacts on financial markets, the environment, innovation and other elements of the economic system.

Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen said one Treasury recommendation is that the U.S. “advance policy and technical work on a potential central bank digital currency, or CBDC, so that the United States is prepared if CBDC is determined to be in the national interest.”

“Right now, some aspects of our current payment system are too slow or too expensive,” Yellen said on a Thursday call with reporters laying out some of the findings of the reports.

Central bank digital currencies differ from existing digital money available to the general public, such as the balance in a bank account, because they would be a direct liability of the Federal Reserve, not a commercial bank.

According to the Atlantic Council nonpartisan think tank, 105 countries representing more than 95 percent of global gross domestic product already are exploring or have created a central bank digital currency.

The council found that the U.S. and the U.K. are far behind in creating a digital dollar or its equivalent.

Treasury, the Justice Department, the Consumer Finance Protection Bureau, the Securities and Exchange Commission and other agencies were tasked with contributing to reports that would address various concerns about the risks, development and usage of digital assets. Several reports will come out in the next weeks and months.

Eswar Prasad, a trade professor at Cornell who studies the digitization of currencies, said Treasury’s report “takes a positive view about how a digital dollar might play a useful role in increasing payment options for individuals and businesses” while acknowledging the risks of its development.

He said the report sets the stage for the creation of agency regulations and legislation “that can improve the benefit-risk tradeoff associated with cryptocurrencies and related technologies.”

The Blockchain Association, which lobbies lawmakers on Capitol Hill, said in a statement that the White House reports are “a missed opportunity to cement U.S. crypto leadership.”

“These reports focus on risks – not opportunities,” the statement reads, “and omit substantive recommendations on how the United States can promote its burgeoning crypto industry, including job creation, improvements to the financial system, and expanded access for all Americans.”

On Capitol Hill, lawmakers have submitted various pieces of legislation to regulate cryptocurrency and other digital assets.

Sheila Warren, CEO of the Crypto Council for Innovation, said in an emailed statement that the report “seem to kick the can down the road” she said, “we don’t see clear recommendations.”

The director of the National Economic Council, Brian Deese, told reporters that “we’ve seen in recent months substantial turmoil in cryptocurrency markets and these events really highlight how, without proper oversight, cryptocurrencies risk harming everyday Americans’ financial stability and our national security.”

“It is why this administration believes that now more than ever,” he said, “prudent regulation of cryptocurrencies is needed.”

grant will help to expand the ability for women to quit with incentives and tools to reinforce their recovery and better prepare them and the family for the new baby,” said Gray.

Gray said smoking during pregnancy is associated with several poor health outcomes. Smoking during pregnancy increases the risk of premature birth. Women who smoke have a higher risk of ectopic pregnancy and miscarriage than non-smokers. Smoking during pregnancy can cause problems with the placenta, which can be dangerous for both mothers and babies. Infants of mothers who smoked during pregnancy have an increased risk of sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS) than infants of nonsmoking mothers. Babies whose mothers smoke in the first trimester of pregnancy are more likely to have a heart defect at birth. Children of pregnant smokers are likely to have learning disorders, behavioral problems and relatively low IQs. The baby of a smoking mother will have nicotine withdrawal after birth.

Gray said the WCTFC has developed a program “unique to Wabash County” by sourcing “Smoking Cessation and Reduction in Pregnancy Treatment” (SCRIPT), “an evidence-based program” from Society for Public Health Education (SOPHE).

Gray said the new program will treat women who smoke who want to get pregnant and women already pregnant.

“Treatment continues according to the need of the birthing mother and family after the baby is born,” said Gray. “Women that want to become pregnant or are pregnant, are most adversely affected by the nicotine and the dangerous chemicals in tobacco. Not only are their bodies at risk, but the baby is also affected the same way.”

Gray said even though the focus is on addressing tobacco, “Tobacco-Free, Moms to Be” also includes “other aspects of healthy living, including improving diet, increasing activity, managing stress and gaining a healthy lifestyle.”

“Pregnancy is a very vulnerable time in a woman’s life and her decisions have an impact on another life,” said Gray. “The SCRIPT program provides the woman with education, guidance, and support to achieve their goals to quit smoking and live a healthier life. This program motivates, counsels, and provides materials to assist and support them in their efforts to quit smoking. A healthy mom, physically and emotionally, increases the chances of the baby being born healthy.”

Gray said when women participate in the program, they are provided with the education and resources from their referral agency or healthcare provider.

“Regular one-on-one support by the cessation coordinator is given with an incentive box or case of diapers with each prenatal and postpartum visit,” said Gray. “To continue receiving diapers postpartum, the participant will need to confirm that she is tobacco-free through testing with the CO2 Breathalyzer or oral cotinine test with each visit.”

Gray said tobacco treatment “will consist of treating the whole woman by providing the needed mental and physical support that

A chilling template for future races

As Election Day approaches, voters need to know what Republican gubernatorial nominee Doug Mastriano did to overturn the 2020 election and how he plans to tilt the results in future races.

Mastriano's relentless efforts to thwart the results of the 2020 presidential election, spread Donald Trump's election lies, and suppress votes in future elections amounts to a 10-alarm fire for anyone who believes in a functioning democracy.

Days after the 2020 election – with no evidence of fraud – Mastriano said the results should not be certified until an audit was complete. On Nov. 23, 2020, the election results in Pennsylvania were certified and showed Joe Biden won the state by 80,555 votes.

Two days later, Mastriano staged a hearing in a hotel ballroom in Gettysburg that gave Trump lawyer Rudy Giuliani a platform to spread lies that the election was stolen and covered up by "Big Tech," the courts, and the media. Trump called into the hearing and falsely claimed, "We won Pennsylvania by a lot."

Later that same day, Mastriano traveled to Washington to meet with Trump and other Republican lawmakers from Pennsylvania to discuss plans to overturn the election. But Mastriano left the meeting after he tested positive for COVID-19.

On Nov. 27, 2020, Mastriano appeared on Steve Bannon's podcast and said, "We're going to take our power back; we're going to seat the electors." Sure enough, Mastriano introduced a resolution that called on the General Assembly to direct the secretary of the commonwealth to withdraw the certification of Biden's victory and appoint new electors. The New York Times later obtained emails that said Mastriano was Trump's "point person" in Pennsylvania for the fake elector scheme designed to overturn the election.

Mastriano also participated in a pressure campaign to get the Justice Department to investigate the election. In a Dec. 27, 2020, call to acting Attorney General Jeffrey Rosen and Deputy Attorney General Richard Donoghue, Trump urged Justice Department officials to "just say the election was corrupt and leave the rest to me and the Republican congressmen." The next day, Mastriano wrote a letter to Donoghue claiming that "election fraud is real and prevalent in Pennsylvania."

On Jan. 6, 2021, Mastriano spent thousands of dollars in campaign funds to bus more than 100 protesters to the "Stop the Steal" rally in Washington, D.C., that turned into a deadly insurrection. Mastriano claimed he left before the mob became violent, but photos appear to show him behind breached barricades set up by Capitol Police.

Even after Biden was sworn in, Mastriano continued efforts to reverse the election. In June 2021, Mastriano traveled to Arizona to observe a Republican-led sham audit of the election results there, which still showed Biden won. The following month, Mastriano sent letters to Philadelphia and two other counties seeking election-related equipment and material needed "to conduct a forensic investigation" of the 2020 election.

Mastriano then turned toward trying to weaken future elections. In August 2021, he introduced a bill to replace the Pennsylvania secretary of state with a three-person panel appointed by the governor, House speaker, and Senate president. The following month, Mastriano introduced a bill to eliminate mail-in voting.

In March, Mastriano continued his attacks on Biden's election. He sponsored a "voter integrity conference" that required attendees to sign a petition decertifying Pennsylvania's 2020 election result.

Mastriano has promoted plans to suppress the vote in future elections. In November, he proposed legislation to eliminate "no excuse" mail-in voting. In April, Mastriano proposed a bill to ban drop boxes. In June, he pitched a plan to require voters to reregister – a move scholars say federal law prohibits.

If elected governor, Mastriano boasted about how he plans to interfere with election outcomes if he doesn't get the results he wants. Mastriano said he would get to "appoint the secretary of state, who's delegated from me the power to make the corrections to elections, the voting logs, and everything." He added: "I could decertify every machine in the state with the, you know, with the stroke of a pen."

Pennsylvania does not need election-denying conspiracy theorists deciding the outcome of elections with the stroke of a pen.

The 'good book' itself contains lost secrets that could be of great help to us today

America has largely dumped religion. Part of that is good, but part is bad. The part where many or most churches have built their politicized "spiritual" bureaucracies on a foundation of theological sand is the good reason for hauling it to the dump. The "sand," of course, is Christianity's faulty interpretation of the scripture, leading inevitably to ignorance, inequality, hypocrisy and violence throughout much of history.

The part where America has thrown out the baby with the bath water is the bad outcome of dumping the whole story of religion and focusing on technology and tribal politics instead. The "good book" itself contains lost secrets that, if found, could be of great help to us today. The kingdom is spoken of in the scripture points to intelligence, equality, integrity and peaceableness as its goal, in other words, democracy. History repeats itself in a bad way when democratic people give up earnest citizenship and at its end point too when they slid into captivity in Babylon.

The Bible is not a book about religion. It is a book about social, economic, and educational activity under a participatory system of government that acknowledges a humane spirit in heaven. That is the kind of society that Moses and the elders of Israel set up in the beginning. But some 400 years after Moses, the culture had lost touch with its roots and was no longer able to decipher its foundational laws and priorities.

At that critical time, an active student of law and history by the name of Isaiah spoke up. He said that Israel's current politicians, scholars, wealthy landholders, and religious leaders had all fallen into "deep sleep," such that Moses' writings had become unintelligible to them. Learned men could not figure them out, and unlearned men could not even read them. Isaiah taught those who were willing to listen and learn what their own ancient "scripture" actually said and meant. Israel was then able to hold on for another century and a half before finally giving up the ghost.

Today is a time when the story of the world's democracies, like that of ancient Israel, needs to be correctly deciphered and told. Our citizens today, college graduates and high school dropouts alike, know nothing of the 400-year history of our own country, let alone the democratic histories of Israel, Athens, Rome, Holland, and England. Time to learn some of that.

Robert Kimball Shinkoskey is a historian of religion and democracy, and is the author of "Democracy and the Ten Commandments."

Response to recent education-related letters

After reading the recent "leader letter" and reading the Wabash City Schools board's letter, some of the big pieces start coming together:

1. It is time for Wabash County to have a single school district with two high schools: Manchester and Wabash.
2. Eliminate Northfield and Southwood high schools as the MSD board has already decided.
3. Middle schools' configuration uration is to be determined by the new Wabash County school board.

4. The ultimate number of school board members is to be worked out by a transition board consisting of current board members.

Out of fashion

By SHELLEY ROGERS

The bi-annual major fashion shows will appear in due succession through Oct. 3 in New York, London, Milan and Paris. On high display, top designer brands will dazzle the world with the newest styles for next year's Spring and Summer wardrobes. The wheels of the $2.7 trillion industry will turn once more. But as quickly as dreams are spun on the runways of the world's fashion capitals, an alternate reality that is as dark as the fashion shows are bright and glittering will continue to feed off the glamour and the hype.

The average person associates fashion with beauty, creativity, self-expression, and social desirability. But poisoning the air, degrading the soil and defiling the oceans is not beautiful. Behind the glamour and loveliness paraded on the catwalks during these Fashion Weeks there lies an enormous contradiction. Here are some of the brutal facts:

The fashion industry produces 150 billion garments, almost all of which (87 percent) will end up in landfill or an incinerator. Only 1 percent will be recycled.

Textile waste is exported from the U.S. to other countries where landfills smolder and pollute the air.

The apparel industry is responsible for 4 percent of all greenhouse gas emissions – the equivalent of Germany, France and the U.K. combined. Unchecked, fashion production would account for 26 percent of all carbon emissions by 2050.

Fashion is one of the most polluting of all industries due to highly toxic dyes and heavy metals flushed into freshwater sources, harming people, destroying livelihoods and damaging ecosystems.

The majority of clothes are a mixture of cotton and synthetics including polyester which are petroleum products. Up to 40 percent of fashion's carbon emissions are from the production of polyester and polyester production is expected to grow by 47 percent over the next 10 years.

When synthetics are washed they send millions of microplastics into the oceans – in fact, 35 percent of all ocean microplastics are from clothing. Microplastics infiltrate the food chain and in a study in March of 2022 at Vrije University in the Netherlands researchers found plastic polymers in the bloodstreams of 80 percent of those tested and of that group 50 percent had PET microfibers that are found in our synthetic clothes.

The industry razes 150 million trees for cellulosic fabrics. Cattle grazing has contributed to deforestation in the Amazon and the leather produced from that region has been traced to global fashion brands' shoes and bags.

Non-organic cotton farming heavily depletes and degrades soil, consuming more pesticides than any other crop. These affect the health of farmers and populations nearby. The toxic farm runoff contaminates fresh waters, wetlands and aquifers and threatens biodiversity and ecosystems.

The true cost of fast fashion's cheap clothing is extracted from the industry's factory garment workers. Workers are paid less than the minimum wage in countries in the global south which does not nearly constitute a "living" wage. Today 40 million people are living in "modern slavery" with fashion the 2nd biggest contributor to this. Child labor is common.

The average person today buys 60 percent more items of clothing than they did 15 years ago, but keeps them for only half as long, and the average garment may be worn as little as 10 times before disposal.

The fast fashion industry is expected to continue to grow as a result of a shifting population and consumption patterns. By 2030, one estimate suggests that clothing consumption will grow 65 percent as 3 billion people move into the global middle class, and a recent report estimated the world is on track to triple clothing production by 2050.

Once clothing is discarded, it must be sorted for distribution. Today this is still done by hand. And while there are innovative technologies that can break down the fabric of used garments into separate types of fibers for feedstock used to make new clothing, many companies are still in the pilot stage awaiting business investment or looking for help to scale their systems to the colossal size necessary. Fully scaled, these technologies could drive 80 percent circularity in the fashion industry.

In a 2020 survey in the U.K., over half of Gen Zs, the most environmentally concerned demographic, reported buying "most of their clothes" from fast fashion brands. Focused on Instagram and TikTok, price and convenience are key to their shopping habits. Fast fashion companies shadow them, trolling the internet through a "search engine optimization" for indicators of up-to-the-second trends and then as quickly as possible churn out new styles – in the case of fast fashion brand Shein, thousands every day – and with meteoric speed, deliver them to their "zoomer" customer's doorsteps.

Whereas most major industries such as the automotive and agriculture industries are heavily regulated, the $2.7 trillion fashion industry is almost entirely unregulated and as a result, brands have had no real incentive to change. But fast fashion has come at too high a price. Accountability and systemic change are critical to reducing the irreversible footprint this industry is making on the planet.

Hopefully, that may be about to happen.

Earthday.org is part of the Act on Fashion Coalition supporting The Fashion Sustainability and Social Accountability Act (the Fashion Act) introduced to the New York State Legislature in January of this year. From the regulatory vacuum where it exists, the fashion industry will for the first time be forced to account for its emissions, water and plastic use, and chemical management, to map its supply chain and disclose its social due diligence. The Fashion Act will, with legally binding environmental standards, create a coherent framework and vision for the transition to a sustainable sector of the economy. Globally, similar legislation and regulations are being proposed. And even a few manufacturers have begun to institute more sustainable processes.

Given the almost limitless destructive power of this industry, it's time to send a message that "Fast Fashion" is "Out of Fashion."

Shelley Rogers directs Earthday.org's global campaign to redesign the fashion industry and reduce its impact on the planet.

Angelika Feldman, who owns Flora & Fauna Provisions with partner and chef Christopher Lee, takes orders at the pop-up eatery outside Nitty's Cider in Sacramento, California, in July. "I call myself the culinary creator because I do a lot of the cooking and the menu writing as well," Feldman said.

Sacramento couple creates traveling pop-up restaurants

Serving unique food at microbreweries

By RANDY DIAMOND
The Sacramento Bee (TNS)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — A passion for trivia night at Sacramento microbreweries led Angelika Feldman and Christopher Lee to create their own traveling pop-up restaurant.

Feldman said playing trivia was fun, but the typical fried food-truck fare provided at the microbreweries didn't always play nice with their digestive tracts.

"Every time we would go to trivia, it would either be tacos, pizza or some kind of over-the-top fried crazy food that would just make you feel sick to your stomach after," said Feldman. "It was good at the time, but not so good after."

Feldman, 30, and Lee, 35, met in May 2020 and soon after started selling pasta, crackers and dried pastas at farmers markets. Their business called Flora & Fauna Provisions — think plants and animals in a broad sense — evolved to include selling jams, beer nuts and mustard.

They received their catering license in March of this year, enabling them to cater private parties, weddings, graduations and other events.

On June 28, they held their first microbrewery pop-up restaurant event. Two months later, they have become regulars at a rotating set of microbreweries.

A good response

At a recent pop-up dinner at Nitty's Cider in Sacramento, Feldman and Lee brought their pots and pans, a portable grill and a fryer, running their whole kitchen under a small tent.

The demand was strong for the menu items. They included house-cured pork-belly sliders with bacon, fried eggs aioli, farmers market tomatoes and butter lettuce on a brioche bun, a cucumber melon salad with feta cheese and bratwurst on a pretzel bun with a choice of housemade toppings.

"We had everything on the menu because it all sounded so amazing and we were really hungry," said Katrina Lund, a social worker, who dined with her sister and two friends at the pop-up restaurant." And I think collectively our favorite was the sliders. They were simple in the best way. Every ingredient on the sliders had so much flavor."

Others eating at the pop-up restaurants were fans of the sausage sandwich.

And probably for good reason. Lee's day job is as a sausage maker at V. Miller meats, a Sacramento butcher shop.

Respect to local farmers

A point of passion for Feldman is that all the local vegetables served are from local Sacramento area farms, adding to the freshness of the dishes.

She said while Sacramento has been dubbed the farm-to-fork capital of the U.S., the farmers are still in the background.

"Everyone celebrates all these chefs," she said, "but no one is celebrating the farmer. We wouldn't have food without the farmer."

When customers compliment Feldman and Lee about the food at the Nitty's Cider event, the couple were quick to speak about the local farms contributing to the food experience.

Feldman said she will soon be adding a shout-out board listing the farmers at future events.

Roving restaurant

On any given week, the Flora and Fauna Provisions pop-up goes to several different microbreweries in the Sacramento area.

Feldman, like Lee, works a day job, but hers is not in the food industry. She works as an inpatient aide at Sutter Medical Center.

Feldman said she doesn't mind the two jobs, and she loves providing patient care, but food is her passion.

She said she fell in love with food as a little girl, watching the food network more than cartoons.

Her first job was working at a doughnut shop and deli, and by the time she was 16, she was employed at Nugget Markets, the Sacramento area supermarket chain. By 18, she was working at the market's specialty cheese department as a cheesemonger.

Her training included visiting dairies and cheese makers, to become an expert in cheese and charcuterie.

Feldman left the food industry in 2017, only to fall in love again with her original passion, when she met Lee in 2020.

Food has been a major love for Lee too.

He started in the culinary world at age 20. He attended the Le Cordon Bleu cooking school in Natomas and did an externship for several months in Northern Spain. His Spain experience included working as a line cook in a rural restaurant.

While the pair's immediate goal is to grow their pop-up restaurant business, Feldman and Lee do have a long-term vision.

They want to open, like many chefs, their own brick and mortar restaurant, finding a permanent home for their food.

"Food is a love language all its own," Lee said, "and once you have fallen in love with food, there is no going back."

QUICK FIX

Avocado cubes give these beef tacos fresh, creamy texture

By LINDA GASSENHEIMER
Tribune News Service (TNS)

Adding thin slices of steak to a taco makes a tasty and quick home-cooked weeknight meal. You can serve these tacos flat, and each person can make and fold their own. Or, if you like, you can serve them in a taco holder. If you don't have one, bend aluminum foil into a taco holder shape and use that instead. Adding avocado cubes to the tacos gives them a fresh and creamy texture.

Linda Gassenheimer / TNS

Beef Tacos
Recipe by Linda Gassenheimer
Yield 2 servings

- 1/2 pound skirt steak
- Olive oil spray
- 1 cup sliced onion
- 1 teaspoon minced garlic
- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- 2 teaspoons ground cumin
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 6 6-inch corn tortillas
- 1/4 cup bought tomato salsa
- 1/2 cup avocado cubes
- 1/4 cup reduced-fat sour cream
- 2 tablespoons chopped cilantro

Remove visible fat from steak. Spray a nonstick skillet with olive oil spray. Add the onion and garlic and saute 3 to 4 minutes. Add the steak and continue to saute another 2 to 3 minutes while continuing to stir the onions and garlic.

Remove from the heat and place the steak on a cutting board to rest a few minutes. A meat thermometer should read 135 to 145 degrees Fahrenheit for medium. Sprinkle the chili powder, cumin and salt and pepper to taste over the steak.

While the steak rests, warm the tortillas. Wrap the tortillas in a damp paper towel and microwave 30 seconds. Divide the tortillas between two dinner plates.

Carve the steak against the grain into 1/2-inch slices.

To assemble the tortillas, divide the slices among the tortillas. Add the onion and garlic to the slices. Spoon the salsa on top. Add the avocado cubes and then drizzle the tortillas with the sour cream. Sprinkle the cilantro on top. Fold the tortillas and serve.

Yes, you're wrong to ask guests to leave if they don't bring a baby gift

Tia Ewing was joking — sort of — when she deadpanned at her baby shower that if her guests hadn't brought a gift, they should just go.

In an Instagram video, which has solicited more than 1,500 comments, Ewing's husband, Early Walker, is thanking guests for attending the shower.

"First and foremost, thank y'all for coming, appreciate y'all," Walker says. "Definitely got to give a shout out to everybody that played a role in this."

Then Ewing, a reporter and anchor at Fox 32 News in Chicago, snatches the mic.

"Not everybody," Ewing says. "Because some people came and didn't even bring a gift. Let me tell you something, this kind of gives me wedding vibes. At my wedding, a lot of people came, but they didn't bring a gift. So if you came to the baby shower and didn't bring a gift, you can leave."

Guests laughed. A friend standing alongside the couple says Ewing didn't mean what she said. "I meant exactly what I said," Ewing reiterates. "So, if you didn't bring a gift, you can get up and go. I said what I said."

Walker, looking sheepish, says, "Ok," and hands the mic back to the shower's on the couple's YouTube channel, invites people to weigh in: "I asked the guests at my baby shower to leave if they didn't buy a gift. Was I wrong?"

Comments on the video are split between those who side with the mother-to-be and people criticizing her for being rude.

"You should only invite folks who you know would purchase a gift," one Instagram user wrote. Another wrote: "No she is not wrong, too many people take advantage of these types of events" and "eat up everything."

On YouTube, a commenter wrote: "Even if I brought a gift, I would still get up and leave. You don't know people's financial situation. But even if that isn't the case, she should have stated it on the invitations. It was crude and tacky."

Ewing, due to deliver in October, said she wasn't serious. She said one person did leave and quickly

DJ, who then says, "Yeah, man, y'all heard what she said. You gotta get up and head to the nearest exit."

The video, also posted returned, playing up the satirical moment.

"I'm kinda a jokester," Ewing said in an interview. "In my mind, it was partially a joke."

Partially.

"Most of the room, they know me," she said. "They know my personality. So for them, it wasn't offensive because that's kinda my personality. Nobody was offended because nobody showed up without a gift, to my knowledge."

Ewing is serious about this. She's adamant that if you attend someone's birthday, wedding, or baby shower, you should bring something.

"It was kinda funny, kinda real," Ewing said. "At my wedding, I noticed that a lot of people came and they didn't bring a gift. And I don't know about you, but I've never gone to anyone's wedding and not taken a gift. I expect that if you come to an event, you at least bring a card."

Ewing hadn't expected so many people would believe she would actually ask gift-less guests to leave. But if there's truth in humor, the video does illustrate an ugly trend of wish lists, gift registries, and GoFundMe campaigns for people not in need, according to Judith Martin, who pens the syndicated etiquette advice column "Miss Manners."

Engaged couples set up websites asking friends and family to contribute to the costs of every aspect of their wedding, including the honeymoon. Folks invite you to their celebrations — a birthday or retirement party — and unashamedly expect you to cover the costs of the venue, the meal, or both. They are specific in demanding a particular present.

"People who are solvent are begging," Martin said in an interview. "The blatant greed is probably the number one etiquette problem. Gimme, gimme, gimme. And it's shocking."

A pastor in Missouri had to backtrack comments he made after berating his congregation for not buying him a Movado watch that can cost anywhere from a few hundred dollars to well over $1,000.

"That's how I know you still poor, broke, busted and disgusted, because of how you been honoring me," the minister told his congregation, according to a video of his message uploaded on TikTok. "I'm not worth your McDonald's money? I'm not worth your Red Lobster money?"

The pastor later posted a video on Facebook apologizing for his tirade.

To justify their excessive demands, people often claim that etiquette rules have changed.

"Of course, etiquette changes, just as language changes, as law changes, but in measured ways for the good of all," Martin said. "This is a horrendous development that people are trying to gouge others to feed their greed."

So, no, you don't berate people for showing up at your celebration empty-handed. You shouldn't tell them what specific gifts they should bestow upon you. Don't hand guests the account number of the college fund you've established or the charity you would like them to support.

Baby showers were once upon a time informal little occasions where people gave charming little, funny things, Martin said. Gifts should be thoughtful "tokens" of affection, Martin said.

If you're attending a baby shower or wedding, yes, you should bring a present. "But not because it's the price of admission, not because they're serving you champagne and wedding cake, but because you care enough about these people to go to their shower or wedding," Martin said.

Invitations have become more like an entrance fee to people's events and not just for milestone occasions. "It is a shocking travesty of using social relations in this way," Martin said. "It's become a way for other people to do your shopping. They've destroyed the whole idea of presents."

Baby showers weren't enough. Now there are gender reveals, with guests wondering if this is gift-worthy. The growing number of celebratory events is financially draining for many people, who are often too scared to say so for fear of being accused of not loving someone enough.

"Caring about somebody and being delighted that person is having a baby does not mean you necessarily want to furnish their house and support the child. Hospitality and the social relation counts for nothing," Martin said. "You're just supposed to come in and pay your tribute. It's like paying taxes."

celebration. Last year Wabash Christian Church started a new tradition. September is the month when things return to normal as children return to school, families return from vacations and activities settle into a routine. To recognize the momentous event, Wabash Christian Church will be holding its second annual Kick-Off Sunday by inviting everyone to come and help celebrate the start of the church year. The event has been set for Sunday, Sept. 18 at 110 W. Hill St. The regular Sunday Church Service will be held at 9:30 a.m. After the service, a meal will be provided. Fun and games such as a dunk tank, bounce house, and other outdoor activities for the young and young at heart will be set up on Hill Street and the church lawn. Make plans now to attend this fun celebration and meet new friends. All are welcome. For more information, call 260-563-4179 or email office@wabashchristian.org.

Manchester University announces the fall Value, Ideas and the Arts series

Manchester University offers more than a dozen programs in its Value, Ideas the Arts (VIA) series for Fall 2022. Presentations are at 11 a.m. Mondays in Cordier Auditorium on the North Manchester campus unless otherwise noted. On Sept. 19, author Kali Fajardo-Anstine will speak about “Living the Stories” focusing on how and why she records and crafts stories about Latina women of indigenous descent living in the American West. There will also be a book reading and signing at 6:30 p.m. that Monday on the upper level of the Jo Young Switzer Center. Sept. 26, Manchester kicks off a series of programs on the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals and Human Rights. Oct. 3, You Yes You! Project Founder and Executive Director Ericka Sanders will discuss her nonprofit organization designed to encourage incarcerated men to stay connected to their children. Oct. 10, a panel of Manchester seniors in “What I Would Tell My First-Year Self?” will reflect on their college experience. Oct. 24 is the second part of the Sustainable Development Goal Series. Oct. 31 is “Astrobiology, Theology and the Future of Faith” with Biblical scholar William Brown. Nov. 7 is “We Feel, Therefore We Learn” by Manchester faculty member Tim McKenna-Buchanan, who will share his journey of becoming a foster and adoptive parent and trauma-informed professor. The play, “We Own This Now,” is 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 10 in Cordier. Nov. 14, Kimberly Kelly, associate professor of sociology and director of gender studies at Mississippi State University, will speak about “After Roe v. Wade: What Mississippi Means for America.” Nov. 28, Denise Kettering-Lane, associate professor of Brethren studies at Bethany Theological Seminary, will speak about the Church of the Brethren tradition at Manchester. Dec. 5 features a student forum on “Building a Campus Food Security and Biodiversity Action Plan,” where students in the Principles of Biology class will present a vision for improving food security and biodiversity on the North Manchester campus. Check https://www.manchester.edu/academics/VIA for additional programs or to see if a particular program will be live-streamed, which is usually finalized within a week of a program.

Manchester Civic Band celebrates a half-century of making music with concerts

The Manchester Civic Band typically holds three concerts per year at the Peabody Retirement Community and Timbercrest Retirement Community. This year will be no different as performances at Peabody Retirement Community have been scheduled for 6:45 p.m. Wednesdays, Sept. 21 and Dec. 7. This year’s Timbercrest Retirement Community performances have been scheduled for 6:45 p.m. Wednesdays, Sept. 28 and Dec. 14. They usually perform on a semi-trailer bed during the North Manchester Fun Fest parade and at Doud’s Orchard Open House in Denver, Indiana. The band will also perform at “Light up the Town” on Friday, Dec. 2 at The Firehouse, 108 W. Main St., North Manchester, to celebrate North Manchester’s Second Fridays on Main for December. Practices are open to all and held weekly at 7 p.m. Wednesdays in the band room at Manchester High School, 1 Squire Drive, North Manchester.

Waypoint Wabash recovery home for women to hold grand opening

The open house of the new facility will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 22 at 189 N. Wabash St. The public is invited to join the board, staff, donors, and volunteers of Waypoint as they celebrate Waypoint’s grand opening. Guests at the open house will have the opportunity to tour the home and learn more about Waypoint’s mission. After nearly three years of renovation, this historic home will soon provide safe and structured housing for women in recovery as they work to rebuild their lives. For more information, email waypointwabash@gmail.com or call 260-228-1454 or visit www.waypoint.com.

Wabash High School plans homecoming celebrations

Once again, Wabash High School (WHS) has planned their homecoming celebrations, this time for Friday, Sept. 23. The annual WHS homecoming parade has been scheduled for that day, as well, at 4:30 p.m. The parade will start and end at the school. Just like last year, the parade route will begin at WHS at 580 N. Miami St., turn north on North Miami Street, turn east on West Harrison Avenue, turn north on North Wabash Street, turn west on Euclid Street, turn south on Alber Street and then return to WHS.

Ladies Golf Association plans 12th Annual Breast Cancer Awareness Golf Scramble

and the Ladies Golf Association (LGA) are hosting the 12th annual Honeywell Breast Cancer Awareness Scramble for men and women on Sunday, Sept. 25. The event begins with a 1 p.m. shotgun start and concludes with dinner, prizes and a raffle draw. The proceeds benefit the 85 HOPE Medical Clinic Mammogram Fund which offers free 3-D mammograms to any Wabash County woman ages 40 to 64 during October in honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Men and women, beginners and experienced golfers are welcomed. The $60 player fee includes 18 holes of golf with cart, snacks, dinner, a gift bag and prizes. A raffle of donated items has also been planned. To register, call 260-563-8663 or mail to 3360 W. Division Road, Wabash, IN 46992. In addition, $75 hole sponsorships from businesses, organizations and individuals “would be greatly appreciated.” Players, hole sponsors and raffle donors must make payments by Tuesday, Sept. 20. Players are asked to make their four-somes.

Honeywell Photography Show on display through Monday, Sept. 26

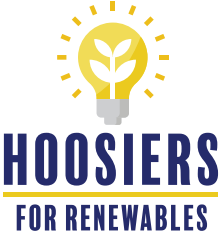

The Honeywell Arts & Entertainment 2022 Photography Show will be on display in the Clark Gallery through Monday, Sept. 26. The competition has three categories: altered images, color, and black and white (including sepia tones). Participants may enter up to three pieces, all of which may be entered into a single category or all three. However, the maximum of three entries still applies. For more information, visit www.honeywellarts.org. Editor’s note: If you have an upcoming event to submit, please send it by email to news@wabashplaindealer.com no later than five days before the event itself. Please use complete sentences, Associated Press style and Microsoft Word or PDF file formats.

Vanderpool said she “thought it would be fun to invite Bob back to join the cast for the second run of the show.”

“The show has an amazing cast of characters and has been rehearsing for two months to present the show,” said Vanderpool.

Vanderpool said the director this year is Jason Gornto, of Peru, who “has years of directing experience and has brought so much to this show.”

Vanderpool said Gornto “was thrilled to have him join the cast.”

“It is people like Bob Wade and his late wife Josey, that we can enjoy performing in WACT today,” said Gornto.

Vanderpool said some of Bob Wade’s favorite shows were, “The Sound of Music,” where he and his wife “made it a three-generation show, being joined by daughter, Angie Beauchamp and granddaughter, Haylie.”

Vanderpool said Bob Wade also enjoyed “Fiddler on the Roof,” “Joseph and the Amazing Dreamcoat,” “The King and I,” “Carousel” and “Cinderella,” where he and his wife were the King and Queen.

“Bob and his late wife have other successful theater involvements including directing the WACT vaudeville show at the Eagles Theater before it underwent the most current renovation and they also Variety Shows for several years when they wintered in Florida,” said Vanderpool. “Watch for Bob during ‘Guys and Dolls’ as he will be making cameo appearances.”

WACT board vice president Eric Seaman said “Guys and Dolls” features music and lyrics by Frank Loesser. The musical fable is based on Damon Lyons’ short story, “The Idyll of Miss Sarah Brown.”

“Set in a mythical New York City, it tells the tale of one Nathan Detroit – a guy who needs a venue for his ‘permanently established floating craps game,’” said Seaman. “Nathan’s best venue has just fallen through and he needs a chunk of change to underwrite an alternative option.”

Seaman said the musical premiered on Broadway in 1950 and won the Tony Award for Best Musical. It was also adapted five years later into a film that featured the likes of Marlon Brando, Frank Sinatra, Jean Simmons and Vivian Blaine. WACT also produced the classic as its fall musical in 2000, making this only the second time that WACT has produced the same fall musical twice, the other being “The Music Man.”

Gornto is a lifelong resident of Peru, and a music teacher at Peru High School.

“I’ve been in the orchestra pit for WACT for many, many years,” Gornto said. “I was approached by the WACT Board of Directors about directing it, and as it’s one of my favorite productions it made too much sense to not help bring this show to life. There are 14 musical numbers in this production and while people will recognize the hits like ‘A Bushel and a Peck’ and ‘Luck Be a Lady,’ our guests will love how the entire musical collection and this amazing cast tell a story about ambition, love and self-made luck.”

Orchestra members include conductor, Judy Ward; piano, Eileen Dye; violins, Paula Merriman, Julie Sadler, and Margaret Sklenar; cello, Carolyn Stoner; flutes and piccolo, LuAnn Craft and Patty Chambers; clarinet and alto saxophone, Sarah See and Bob Urbani; tenor saxophone

The WACT will present their 26th fall musical, “Guys and Dolls,” from Friday, Sept. 23 through Sunday, Sept. 25 at the Honeywell Center's Ford Theater. Show times are 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

and baritone saxophone, Chris Hickman; trumpets, Randy Thrush, Emily Rodeck and Ron Withers; trombones, Lindsay Knee and Bob Brown; French horn, Carolyn Eppley; bass guitar, Barry Eppley; and percussion, Bob Ferguson.

Co-producers are Bev Vanderpool and Beth Miller. The musical director is Judy Ward. Set designer is Biz Bates. Set construction supervisor is Gary Norman. The choreographer is Andrea Lanham. The stage manager is Madison Waldon. The costumer is Eileen Meyer Sklar. The rehearsal pianist is Eileen Dye. Props masters are Lisa Rice, Cheryl Maggart, Lori Widman and Lin Metzger.

DEAR AMY: I have a group of three friends (we're all male) with whom I enjoy one overnight each month at a cabin in the woods. We take turns cooking.

Amy Dickinson
Ask Amy

I was horrified. I have a degree in biology and taught environmental science for over 30 years — neither of these guys has experience with mycology or taxonomy of fungi — nor could they even name the species of mushrooms that were used. When I expressed my dismay, they were defensive ("My wife said they were OK!") and eventually turned to taunting.

At the next overnight I questioned what ingredients were included in the meal. Realizing the ridiculousness of this endeavor to be safe and wishing to avoid further ridicule, I began to bring my own food under the declaration that I prefer to eat later in the evening than they do. Amy, they are still making jokes about it and have never shown any contrition, much less offered an apology.

Two questions: Was my reaction unfounded (I can't imagine it was), and do you have a suggestion for resolving this through communication? — Avoiding Amanita

DEAR AVOIDING: Your reaction was not unfounded, but your overreaction is.

Your friends made a potentially dangerous choice; as it turned out, everyone got lucky and no one got sick. You conveyed your educated and legitimate concern, and you know your friends heard you because they resorted to taunting you for taking your position.

I hope that what you describe as "taunting" was a milder teasing.

You certainly have the right to bring your own food to these gatherings, but you aren't being honest about your reason (and "eating later" doesn't necessarily make sense). And — every time you do this you revive the original issue, which is that you don't trust your friends to offer a safely prepared meal.

In my opinion, you should make a choice to trust your friends' food prep, but this would require you to relax about an issue you obviously take extremely seriously.

You might flip this issue on its side if you more or less dove into the heart of it. Have some T-shirts made for the group: "Fun Guys Forage Fungi."

DEAR AMY: My spouse and I have been in a committed partnership for over 30 years.

It was only after many years together that marriage became legally available to us.

As the reality of confirming our long-standing commitment was now a possibility, it still took some time to consider how we see ourselves, our lifetimes of shared experiences, and our intertwined families.

Marriage is not only a celebration and beginning; it is a personal acknowledgement of our long lives together.

When someone sees a ring on my finger, they will sometimes question how long we have been married. That's when our definition of our lives together comes up against what some people allow to be true.

I would prefer to answer, truthfully, that we have been married for 30 years. When an incredulous look inevitably follows, I could add: "...and we formalized it last year."

But then some people could respond: "But you have only been married for 1 year..." as if to place a huge asterisk on our marriage.

Besides insulting our proud and deeply personal milestone, their conditional definition diminishes the true story of our lives together.

So — what should our answer be to the question of how long have we been married? — Happily Married

DEAR MARRIED: Congratulations on your long and successful relationship. Clunky encounters with others might be causing you to anticipate more — with a somewhat defensive stance.

You can describe your relationship any way you wish, including to say you've been married for 30 years. If someone doesn't like that answer or challenges it, then — that's on them.

It would also be quite simple for you to say, "We've been married in our hearts for 30 years and legally married for one — so I guess that makes us the longest-married newlyweds on the planet."

HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, SEPT. 17, 2022

ARIES (March 21-April 19) When you lead, others might well follow. You can set a good example of wise business expertise now. Romance could be ready to blossom in a most unexpected way. This is a good time to kiss and make up.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Exercise and physical activity can bring you down to earth and back on your game. Understand your limitations but explore all the possibilities. A partner might share some fascinating subjects that trigger your interest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The fuzziest logic might make sense to you now. An array of interesting information and ideas could send you in a totally different direction. Watch out for mix-ups with messages and offer sincere apologies when needed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Think green and protect the planet. You'll find serious satisfaction by finding new and more powerful ways to become part of the solution. You may develop or share a passion for a study of life's mysteries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your job or career may come first. For you, it is not business before pleasure, but perhaps business being a pleasure. You will get the most satisfaction by concentrating on your financial security and material success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Budging ambitions may occupy your mind and take up your time. You may have an incentive to follow through on a creative idea. This is a good time to initiate new projects and follow through with them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Follow friendly advice. A casual suggestion from a trusted friend might help you get ahead or avoid a potential pitfall. This could be a good time to make major changes or start something new within your home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Take the first step. You should be able to achieve your goals and find more stability by putting your most ambitious ideas into motion this weekend. Once you get the ball rolling, a project can gain momentum.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Fill your head with facts rather than fantasies. You may find it difficult to come to a conclusion, but discussions can be interesting. Focus on making your bank account and financial security grow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may enjoy self-imposed pressure to excel. This might be an excellent time to launch a new business idea or to focus on a new project. Draw on reserves of stamina to relentlessly push things into being.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Guard your privacy and look for new solutions. If you feel that you're stuck on a treadmill, you can't move in a new direction until you quit running in the same direction. A partner can show you how to make positive change.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) There is time to waste and more time to wonder. A new relationship could be a lot of fun, but you may feel that nothing is accomplished and there's no clear direction. Avoid the temptation to be overly sympathetic.

NEVER LOOK DOWN

The higher a climber, the more dangerous it becomes. The climber searches for strength and firm footing with every step and never looks down until he reaches his goal. Life places obstacles before us that appear insurmountable; with God's help we can possess power we didn't know we have, making the impossible possible. Visit your house of worship this week and know that your highest aspiration is as near as a prayer. Look up toward Him...never look down.
